ABOUT US

The Marketing and Communications Committee is an information gateway for the university. We are charged with communicating and showcasing the continuous achievements in research, service and education of this unique by-the-sea community.

Our communications tell the exciting stories of the faculty, staff and students at this tier-one, special purpose campus. In coordination with the main campus Division of Marketing & Communication, our committee coordinates three areas: communications, marketing, and development, all of which are committed to enhancing the Texas A&M brand, and the national visibility and reputation of both Texas A&M University and its Galveston Campus.
